Two Kinds of Miracle John D., Jr., on Science Since Cleopatra's Day Queer, Dangerous Days —By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1924, by Star Company

THREE NEWS HEADINGS on the front page. One tells of Lord Northcliffe sending a spirit message from heaven to Lord Beaverbrook, another newspaper owner, through the late Bonar Law. You read that, smile and turn away. That sort of miracle doesn't interest you.

THE NEXT HEADING, "Pictures by radio sent from London to New York in twenty minutes." You see pictures of the British Premier Baldwin and Calvin Coolidge accurately sent through the ether without wires. That MIRACLE does interest you. No fake about that, no medium having a convulsion and turning down the light. "No 'ectoplasm,' just science, and truth."

THE THIRD news heading tells you that science travels faster than religion, according to John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Talking to his Bible class, he says: "The development of mind and matter has so far outstripped the development of the spiritual values in human life." And, Mr Rockefeller asks, "has civilization outgrown religion?"

THE ANSWER is "no, and the Woolworth Building hasn't outgrown the Rocky Mountains."

Men in a few years will take the radio, the trip around the world in twenty-four hours, and all the rest of science for granted. But they will never take the Sermon on the Mount for granted. In the words, "Suffer little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven," there is power greater than the much-discussed power locked up in the atom, greater than all the power that would be produced by harnessing all the waterfalls, all the tides or the sun itself. The only real, eternal power is in ideas.

HOW THINGS have changed in "Mighty Egypt" since Antony, great Roman, married the ugly Cleopatra, that he might use her power, and especially her gold, in his fight against Caesar. And how little Cleopatra, daughter of the Ptolemies, could have imagined that within a few centuries her country would be submitting to bitterly humiliating orders from a little foggy island on the northwest coast of Europe, the land from which they used to bring the slaves with yellow hair and blue eyes to the shores of the Mediterranean.

But so it is. The British lion roars, Egypt says, "All right, I will pay what you wish; I will do what you please, and I will get out of Sudan."

WE LIVE in queer, dangerous days. In Seattle the government wants to dismantle an innocent-looking broadcasting station. Every evening a lady, wife of the proprietor, sent through the air a beautiful bedtime story. What could be purer, more innocent?

The government says MANY things could be more innocent, for the bed-time story sent out contained code information for bootleggers. That's queer.

IN CHICAGO a respectable bank cashier, Hugh Stewart, driving in an automobile with his wife sees some men following him. He's not the kind that "stick up" men get away with.

Wig. ut automatic he opens fire killing Detective William Perrin and wounding two other policemen members of a detective squad. That's the dangerous part.

IF IN these days Satan spends his time, as in the past, going up and down the earth, it would be interesting to know how often people try to hold him up or shoot through him.

DR. STANTON COLT, British leader of the Ethical Church in London, says emancipation of woman means the downfall of civilization. Many will say if such a civilization as this must fall let it fall. It will come up again.

The hero of the "Persian letters" would have told you that opening the harem, letting women take the veils off, each

TAKEN IN BANDIT HUNT

Gun Like That Used on Policemen Found in Room of New Suspects

Three more men and one woman were arrested today in connection with the shooting in the Back Bay of Patrolman Thomas E. McCabe and Joseph F. Condon, following a holdup late Saturday night.

The arrests came as Cornelius J. Moriarty, known to the underworld and the police as "Connie the Rat," was being formally charged with the shootings.

C. J. Moriarty.

The arrests resulting today from the police combing of the greater city were those of Victoria Giraldo, of Sumner street, East Boston; Joseph McDonagle, twenty-one, and his brother, James, twenty, of the South End and Morris Lerner of Cambridge street, Cambridge.

The McDonagle brothers and the Giraldo woman were arrested in a house in Cooper street, South End, where a 32-calibre revolver—the same calibre as that of the gun used in the shooting—was found, together with a number of cartridges wrapped in a napkin.

REWARD OF $500.

Simultaneously came the offer of a $500 reward for the capture of the bandit who shot down Patrolman Condon. The reward was offered by the lodge of Elks of which the policeman is a member.

A statutory charge was placed against Joseph McDonagle and the woman, while McGonagle was held as a suspicious person, as was Lerner.

Federal authorities declared that if "Connie the Rat" is released by the Boston police he will be arrested on a Federal charge of selling narcotics to Narcotic Agent Davis in 1922. According to the government, Moriarty had a 32-calibre revolver in his possession when Davis and other agents descended on him.

Moriarty, who lives on Emerald street, South End, had been partially identified as the man who shot the two policemen.

Attorney Harry J. Burroughs of Pemberton square, into whose auto the assailant of Patrolmen McCabe and Condon jumped, is declared to have partially identified the alleged bandit.

Captain Alnales C. Armstrong of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation declined today to state whether such an identification had been

CALLS GOODWIN FOR PROBE BY GRAND JURY

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin with officials of the Waltham Police Department and several members of Goodwin's office, have been summoned to appear before the Middlesex Grand Jury at its investigation tomorrow of the registrar's charges that police of Middlesex cities and towns have been "framing" auto violations.

The investigation will centre upon the case of Jacob J. Peterson, president of a Waltham ice and coal concern, who was arrested August 14 for drunkenness and against whom no charge of driving while drunk was made in court.

Peterson, some time after his arrest, Goodwin charges, was permitted to plead "nolo." Goodwin described the affair as a "fixed case."

Assistant District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell declares his office has not been notified by Registrar Goodwin of any case fixing.

"It is the duty of every citizen to make known any violation of the automobile laws that he knows of," says Bushnell.

Phone Company Sued for $41,000 for Delayed Call

Newark, N. J., Dec. 2.—A suit to recover $41,000 from the New York Telephone Company for losses from fire because of an alleged seventeen-minute delay in getting a telephone operator to answer calls for fire, April 5, was filed by two Orange residents.

The plaintiffs are the owners of a garage which burned. Two counts are made in the suit, the first charging failure of the telephone company to supply service under terms of the contract with the subscriber, the second charging failure to give service under its common law duty.

COOLIDGE SEES $67,000,000 SURPLUS

Washington, Dec. 2 (I.N.S.).—President Coolidge today told Congress how to keep on reducing taxes.

It can be done, he said only by continuing the Government's present policy of strict and unyielding economy.

Transmitting to Congress the Federal budget for the fiscal year 1925-26 the President revealed that a surplus of $67,000,000 is anticipated at the end of the current fiscal year on June 30, 1925, and that the surplus for the next year is expected to be nearly $374,000,000.

"We are now in the fourth year of our campaign for the reduction of the cost of government," the President said in a special message read in both houses.

"Our aim is to reduce the burden of taxes. In this we have been successful. We are fast reducing our expenditures to a minimum consistent with efficient service.

"Shall we embark upon new projects involving expenditures which will prevent the accumulation of expected surpluses, or shall we continue the campaign for economy?

"I am for economy. If we continue the campaign for economy we will pave the way for further reduction in taxes."

Mr Coolidge added, however, that

LAWSON'S $60,000 GAMBLE

Made Big Sum for Chums on a Shoestring, They Plunged and Lost All

Here is the second chapter of the thrilling career of Thomas W. Lawson, one-time hero of American finance, who was so close to sheering in his lonely island retreat off the coast of Maine, broken in body and purse and gone forever from the whirl of State Street. Yesterday the Boston American told of his first adventure in the business world—handling gold in a Boston banking house. Today the narrative is continued.

Succeeding chapters will bare his harrowing adventures in the world of finance, his exploits in the market pit with the bulls and the bears.

YOUNG TOM LAWSON'S first year in finance, as a boy working in "The Street" marked a date that still lives in the memories of older financiers, for it was in 1869 that the money ring, headed by Jay Gould, then a power in the money world, made its bold and historical attempt to corner the gold market on "Black Friday."

This daring venture always remained a fresh recollection and a fixture in Lawson's mind, and the talk the boy heard among the older men in his banking concern regarding the attempted corner, gave him his first insight into the more insidious depths of finance.

As confidential messenger for Stevens, Amory & Company, young Lawson heard many bits of gossip and not a few straight "tips," not meant to find a lodging place in his ears, and ultimately it occurred to him to make use of the valuable information thus casually gained.

At State and Devonshire streets in those days was an oyster house where the succulent bivalves, well immersed in washing milk and the other ingredients that go to make

Ban on Publication of Income Tax Is Not Legal, Judge Rules

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 2 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Alva S. Reeves today sustained the demurrers of Walter S. Dickey, owner and editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post, and Ralph Ellis, managing editor, to indictments charging illegal publication of federal income tax returns.

The clause in the law holding that publication of income tax returns is illegal, Judge Reeves holds, is in violation of the first amendment to the Constitution relative to the freedom of the press.

ASKS $100,000 FOR PROBE OF 'PHONE CO.

An investigation of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company—especially in connection with its interrelations with "foreign" corporations—was demanded today in a resolve filed with the State Legislature by State Senator William I. Hennessey of Dorchester.

Senator Hennessey asked an appropriation of $100,000 to provide for a committee to be appointed to probe the telephone company. He asked that the committee be appointed as soon as possible and that it go right to the inner workings of the company and report its findings to the Legislature at a date to be named.

In the resolve Senator Hennessey demands that the corporate relations between the New England company and the New York company, the Western Electric Company and the American Telephone & Telegraph Company be investigated.

He wants the policy of the local company probed, especially with regard to importing employes from other States.

HUGE PUBLICITY FUND.

He also asks that the committee learn to what extent the corporate funds have been used for publicity purposes in connection with the proposed new rate schedule.

"It is interesting to note," says Senator Hennessey, "that four years ago dividends of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company were increased from 8 to 9 per cent., and the New England Company increased from 7 per cent. to 8 per cent.

"Instead of decreasing the rates, as many other companies did at that time—namely Illinois and Pennsylvania—the dividends were raised.

"About 6 per cent. on a public utility is a very reasonable return on the original investment as compared

3 NAMED IN O'BRIEN INQUIRY

Impersonated District Attorney, Took Money to "Fix" Prisoner's Case

The Suffolk County Grand Jury today returned secret indictments in the alleged "fixing" cases, in which defendants were mulcted by persons posing as the district attorney.

The true bills, of which there are said to be three were returned in Superior Criminal court, are understood to contain the names of three men.

The indictments resulted from evidence presented by District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, following an investigation of a story told by Harry Byers, proprietor of a South End store.

At the time District Attorney O'Brien said the inquiry would involve several members of the Legislature, as well as bondsmen in the corridors of the courthouse.

Byers, convicted of a liquor law violation by the lower court, appealed, and alleged he paid $300 to a man posing as the District Attorney to "fix" his case. Much to his surprise when the case was called in Superior Court, Byers was sentenced to Deer Island and fined.

His wife, in tears, went to District Attorney O'Brien and asked why her husband was being sent away after he had paid money for immunity. The district attorney obtained a revocation of Byers' sentence, and began an investigation.

The evidence was presented to the grand jury yesterday, the chief witness being Ex-Representative Hugh J. Campbell of Jamaica Plain. Byers also testified, as did Saxe, a former pugilist, and Officer George McCaffrey, attached to the district attorney's office.

$500,000 Fire Loss

Parkersburg, W. Va., Dec. 2.—Fire in the Parkersburg business district today destroyed two buildings and the plant of the United Woolen Mills, with a loss estimated at more than $500,000.

MESSENGER BOY AND $60,000 VANISH

New York, Dec. 2.—Stewart & Co., bond brokers, reported to the police today that a messenger boy named Harris had disappeared yesterday with $60,000 in securities. The messenger was employed ten days ago and gave an address in uptown Manhattan. No one named Harris lived at such an address tenants told police today.

CHAMBER MEETS TOMORROW TO FIGHT BOOST IN PHONE RATES

STORM OF PROTEST GROWS

with 4 to 5 per cent, granted by co-operative savings banks. Why the tremendous expenditure for publicity? More than 1,000,000 copies of a twelve-page pamphlet were distributed. If the request for increase is reasonable the subscribers will co-operate.

SALARY DIFFERENCES.

"At hearings before the Public Utilities Commission it has been brought out by witnesses for the city in opposition to the first proposed increase that the four and a half per cent. paid the American Telephone and Telegraph Company is not justified. Also that salaries and fees collected by officials are extremely extravagant compared to the salaries paid working officials."

The proposed increases range as high as 100 per cent. in some instances, with the average boost approximating 22 per cent.

It was announced today that the Retail Trade Board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce will meet tomorrow and take action on the boosts. The previous attempt by the telephone company to skyrocket rates met with determined opposition from this organization.

JOIN CURLEY IN FIGHT

Mayor John M. Webster of Somerville was indignant over the proposed increase.

"I will appear at the hearing before the public utilities board and lend my support to preventing such a large increase in telephone rates," he said.

The board of aldermen of Somerville is on record as opposing the fare increases and by a unanimous vote recently instructed the Mayor to appear at the hearing and register opposition to the raise.

Another executive who voiced protest against the increase was Mayor G. H. Whittemore of Beverly.

"Not only the Mayors but the citizens themselves," he said, "should vigorously oppose such an extortionate increase as is asked for by the telephone company. I will go the limit along with Mayor Curley of Boston in opposing the raise."

Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge today entered the fight by demanding that the telephone company disclose the methods by which it arrived at the decision that increases were necessary. The Mayor said he would take no action until after the information was in his hands.

Mayor Curley, even before the schedule of increases was filed, had demanded a thorough probe of the telephone company in all its branches, including an investigation of the holding company, the American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

OTHERS AFFECTED.

Because of the wide area affected by the proposed boosts, it is certain that other communities will join the Boston "wrong number band" in batting the raise.

At attempt to crowd the new rates through before adequate consideration was seen today in the telephone company's request that they be made effective January 1.

It is hardly possible, however, that this request will be acceded to, under the storm of protest.

The Legislature convenes January 6, and it undoubtedly will be drawn into the battle through Mayor Curley's request for a telephone company probe.

"The company estimates that the new schedule will produce an increased revenue averaging about three cents per telephone per day, or a gross increase of about 25 per cent. of the revenue," an official statement from the telephone company's publicity bureau states.

A perusal of the increases, however show that the bulk of persons in Great Boston are going to pay far beyond this increase under the new rates—and in most of the cases, this increased rate will be accompanied by a decrease in service.

The telephone company estimated that the new rates will increase the revenue of the company about $7,000,000 in the State, according to the telephone company's figures.

LONDON PICKED UP ON JONES RECEIVER

F. B. Swett, No. 81 Essex street, Chittondale, Mass., put together in an hour and twenty-two minutes, one of the new Jones 4-Tube Knockdown Receivers.

On Tuesday evening, November 25, at 11:40 p. m., London, England was received. The mandolin music being plainly heard.

BIG RUSH FOR GOLD-PLATED 47C. RAZORS

The old timers who made the grand rush to the gold fields in 1849 had the right spirit, but they weren't in it in numbers compared with the paraders who march daily to the Boston American office in Winthrop square for those goldplated auto strop razors.

There's one thing certain—those grisly pioneers never knew what it was to have that velvety skin after an early morning shave, and reports of their difficulties with whiskers in the cold weather in the Rockies indicate they might have swapped many a bag of nuggets for an auto strop.

Imagine how they would feel to be able to collect a gold-plated safety razor for forty-seven cents, just a few paltry grains of gold dust to those boys.

The razors are ready every day. No coupons needed. Just forty-seven cents.

Ideal Christmas gifts? You said it!

made. Although blood was spattered on the taxi in which the gunman made his escape, Moriarty bore no wound.

John McGahey of No. 2 Rosecliff street, Dorchester, the taxi driver who at the point of a gun was forced to drive the bandit to the corner of Dover and Emerald streets, was unable to make positive identification of Moriarty. The police consider it significant that "Connie the Rat" lives on Emerald street.

Inspector Dennessey today continued to question witnesses at headquarters for further details of the shooting of the two policemen.

GUNMEN FLEE BOSTON.

Gunmen, gangsters, bandit suspects and crooks of all description are fleeing Boston by the scores as the drive of the Boston police against the Hub underworld gets under way.

Every train leaving the South and North Stations carries aboard men of known criminal tendencies, who are leaving town "until things blow over."

Providence, Hartford, New Haven, Albany, Lowell and Lawrence are some of the cities in which Boston's underworld is seeking temporary sanctuary.

Following the shooting of two police officers following a Back Bay robbery, Saturday night, the police department, inspectors as well as men "pounding" beats, were ordered to arrest every person acting in a suspicious manner. Known criminals are to be arrested on sight wherever there is the slightest possibility of connecting them in any way with the recent outbreak of banditry and lawlessness.

Tornado in France

Nice, France, Dec. 2 (AP)—A tornado swept the city, lasting about twenty seconds, while a great waterspout appeared just off shore. A number of buildings were wrecked and about seventy persons were injured.

War, Autos and Ease of Buying Guns Blamed for Crime Wave

The war, promiscuous use of automobiles and the ease with which firearms may be obtained are three of the reasons given by Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, prominent psychiatrist and criminologist and member of the recently formed commission for investigating Massachusetts' prisons, for the crime wave, the latest incident in which is the shooting of Patrolmen McCabe and Condon after a holdup in the Back Bay.

Boston takes a prominent place in the wave of lawlessness that is sweeping the country, standing fifth among the cities of the country for the number of capital offences committed per one thousand inhabitants.

It is Dr. Briggs' claim that the government which teaches its men to value their lives lightly and take the lives of others willingly during war must expect those men to kill cheerfully when they get home.

ALL BOASTERS.

Criminals of this class are proud of their profession. An eighteen-year-old murderer taken to the Charles Street Jail was asked if he regretted his crime. His reply was, "What difference is there between me and the Back Bay gent who went to France to shoot Germans? His profession was licensed and mine isn't—that's all."

The youth of the worst grades of criminals is a noteworthy feature of the problem. Most gunmen are under thirty years of age, says Dr. Briggs. Many of them are ex-service men.

They work in large gangs and are loyal to one another. Occasionally a feeble minded criminal is used as a dupe of the gang. But for the most part they are a clever crowd.

So common has their profession become that police officers are said to know where you can apply to get a murder done neatly and quietly satisfaction guaranteed. The price for such a job is only $100.

The trouble is, according to Dr. Briggs, that the police can't do anything until after a murder has been committed. Then they catch the guilty one if possible.

But punishment of an individual is no cure for crime. This is the opinion of Dr. Briggs and other prominent criminologists. Dr. Lewis Lawes, for four years warden of Sing Sing, and a hard and fast believer in capital punishment, has now reversed his opinion, "finding from observations and study that it not a deterrent."

DO NOT REFORM.

According to Dr. Briggs that method of dealing with crime is simply "passing the buck." "We do nothing to reform the criminal in this world," he says, "but pass him on to a place where his treatment is indefinite."

"Other criminals speak carelessly of the 'bad luck' of one who has been put to death and continue their operations."

"The first step toward diminishing murders and robberies," he says, "is to pass a national law making it a jail offence to carry firearms." He praised the Sullivan law in New York.

"The law of one State, however, is insufficient," he said. "The regulation must be nation-wide to be effective. Dr. Briggs characterized as humanitarian the action of Loeb in having suppressed from all Sears Roebuck catalogues advertisement of weapons."

CHILD BALD AFTER TEACHER PULLED HER HAIR, SAYS FATHER

READING SCHOOL CLASH

School Board Censures Instructor; Parent Demands Further Action

Because she pulled the hair of eleven-year-old Hazel Allen,, a pupil, Mrs. Nellie P. Beaton, teacher in the Lowell street grammar school, Reading, was censured by the Reading school committee.

The girl's father, Francis S. Allen, of Greve street, declared in a complaint made to the School Board that a tuft of his child's hair came out in the teacher's hands. He exhibited the hairs and a bald spot on the girl's head to substantiate his story.

"Mrs. Beaton took hold of my hair and shook me," said Hazel Allen. "Then she took me by the arm and hurt me. I and all the other children thought she was going to hurt me pretty bad and they cried out."

CALLED BEFORE BOARD.

The father complained to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, but he now asserts that neither the local school board nor the State society gave him the satisfaction he desired.

As a result he refuses to allow little Hazel to go to school. Walter Scott Parker, chairman of the school committee, declares that the board considers it wise to prevent trouble by not forcing the girl to attend school at present.

Mrs. Beaton, who lives at No. 6 Grove street, and has been a teacher in Reading for several years, was called before the school board after Allen presented his charges.

"We told Mrs. Beaton that we did not uphold her in grasping the child by the hair," said Chairman Parker. "We considered that sufficient and we do not think it necessary or wise to discharge her.

CHAIRMAN'S STORY.

"The child was admittedly disobedient. She sat in her seat and said, 'I won't, I won't.' Now, if children are going to defy their teachers, we may as well close the schools. Unfortunately, the teacher grasped this child by the hair.

"We decided after an investigation that she did not pull out any of the little girl's hair, nor did she make black and blue marks on the child's arm, or hold her against the wall and slap her face."

The matter is closed, in the view of the schoolboard, but the father declares he will not let the matter rest until further action is taken against Mrs. Beaton.

LETTERS URGE BASKET FUND ASSISTANCE

Strikingly pitiful appeals for food continue to pour in to the Boston American Helping Hand Christmas Basket Fund office. Each day the number of letters from impoverished parents and unclothed kiddies, asking for something to eat on Christmas Day, increases.

Vincent Polco — Marion Sylva

The contents of many of these letters are enough to make the most hardened individual shed tears.

A large number of these appeals for food will remain unanswered unless contributions to the fund come in faster. Careful inquury will be made into these appeals so that only really needy families shall receive the food purchased by the Basket Fund.

FROM MOTHER OF FIVE.

This struggling young mother of small children writes:

"My husband is dead, and I have no one to help me. I work, but earn just enough to pay the rent. Mother has to buy clothes for my five small children. I hope you will make our Christmas happy by sending us a dinner."

"Hundreds of Dorchester children are going to help the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund next Saturday morning by attending a big "Kiddie" show in Gordon's Fields Corner Theatre in Adams street, Dorchester. This show, to begin at 10:00 and continue until 12:00 o'clock, will be under the direction of Miss Helen M. Roche of South Boston, who has been an enthusiastic worker for the Basket Fund for many years. She is being assisted by James K. O'Donnell, manager of the Field's Corner Theatre. It was through Mr. O'Donnell's interest in the Basket Fund that Nathan H. Gordon, proprietor of the theatre, consented to give its free use for next Saturday's big party.

Miss Roche, who is one of the most versatile musicians of this city, playing almost all instruments, will be at the organ during the show, which will include a five-reel comedy for the "Kiddies."

Many talented Greater Boston children will also appear at the performance, including Bernice and Mary Foran, daughters of Thomas Foran, Donald Hooton, Marion and Dorothy Ogden, Kay Barry, "Chris" Hobson, Billy Ogden, and "Toots" Mondello.

In order that all children who desire may witness this big show, the low admission price of ten cents will be charged.

GIVES 2 PRIZE DOLLS.

Among the women who are actively assisting the Basket Fund is Miss Marion E. Gaze, of Medford, who contributed two imported baby dolls which are to be given away at the Copley-Plaza ball, December 11.

The outfits worn by these dolls were hand-made by Miss Gaze.

Frances Ragan — Anita Hanes

Others who are actively assisting the fund are Mrs. Ella Silver of Allston, Miss Pauline M. Holman of Allston and Mrs. S. Landers of Brookline.

ALLSTON MAN FOUND DAZED IN WRECK

Milford, Dec. 2.—Found dazed and bleeding in an automobile today on the Southern road, near Hollston, Herbert J. Dickinson of Allston is in the Milford hospital. He has not yet recovered sufficiently to be able to account for his injuries.

A motorist driving along a lonely stretch of road saw Dickinson slumped in the front seat of a wrecked automobile. He called to him and when the man did not respond the passing driver stopped his car. Efforts to arouse Dickinson, who was covered with blood, were unavailing and the newcomer transferred the injured man to his own car and took him to the hospital.

There is was found that Dickinson had a slight concussion of the brain and possible internal injuries. The car from which he was taken had been badly wrecked. The fenders had been ripped from one side and the radiator caved in.

The police believe another automobile collided head-on with that driven by Dickinson and then backed and sped away. How long the injured man lay in his seat on the lonely road before he was discovered is not known.

Mining Land Given to University as Joke Worth $10,000,000

George N. Brady of Detroit and Tandee Whittier of Saginaw, associated with the late Senator Thomas W. Palmer, were the originators who thought they had played a joke on the university. Brady and Whittier were in a land syndicate that acquired this property and each man thinking this particular piece to be worthless, tried to get rid of his interest by "wishing it on the other." In the end they decided to give it to the University of Michigan and the quit claim deed was transferred in 1905.

VALERA LIKELY TO CONTROL IRELAND

London Gets Report That the Government Will Be Handed to Him

London, Dec. 2.—A story concerning the possible effects in Southern Ireland of the dispute over the competence of the Boundary Commission set up by the Anglo-Irish treaty is published by the Daily Mail from its Dublin correspondent.

If it becomes evident, the correspondent says, that the conclusion will concede nothing more than a mere adjustment of the boundary line, Free State representatives and the Free State Cabinet, will resign the Government to be handed over to Eamon de Valera.

As to the attitude of the Free State government there is growing belief in Belfast that President Cosgrave's illness will necessitate his resignation, and it is asserting in Ulster circles that while Kevin O'Higgins, his logical successor, is genuinely desirous of maintaining friendly relations with the British government and upholding the Anglo-Irish treaty, some of his colleagues apparently are not animated by the same sentiment.

Dublin, Dec. 2 (A.P.)—The report through London suggesting that the Irish Free State cabinet would resign and hand over the government to Eamon de Valera and his supporters in the event of certain developments in connection with the Irish boundary commission, is ridiculed in well-informed Free State circles.

$1,000 Offered for Proof of Mind Reading

BANK WINS IN INDIAN RAJAH BLACKMAIL

Robinson and Wife Lose Suit for $625,000 Extortion Fund

London, Dec. 2 (U.N.S.)—Lord Darling, presiding justice in England's most famous blackmail case, returned a decision for the Midland Bank today, refusing the claim of Charles Ernest Robinson, to $625,000 that he said was withdrawn from the bank on a forged check.

Lord Darling interpreted the law in the case after the jury had declined that Robinson and his pretty wife, Maude, were not in the conspiracy whereby Sir Harri Singh, known in the case as "Mr. A.," multi-millionaire rajah of Kashmir, India, paid $750,000 to quiet what he supposed was the lie of a betrayed husband and keep his name from the divorce courts.

"It was proved this was stolen money," Lord Darling announced in giving his decision today. "It was stolen from this Indian gentleman."

"Answers of the jury to questions put to it proved the money was extorted from him by menace. No body could give anybody else a title to it, so his title to it remains."

Lord Darling decided the plaintiff should bear the costs of the trial.

Announcing the arrest in Paris of the British side-de-camp to the "Mr. A.," whose identity was concealed "for reasons of State," the newspapers here say that he is Captain E. W. A. Arthur. This is the man described in last week's law courts proceedings as the "Judas" of the case. During the war he served as an artillery officer. He once ran a small racing stable in Ireland.

Captain Arthur lived for some time in the East and it is believed he first met Sir Harri Singh just after the war when American and other business men were seeking openings in Kashmir.

After his betrayal of his employer in the Paris hotel, Arthur is said to have tried to sell liquor in China. This venture failed, so he turned his attention to New York's rum row, making several trips to America in the early days of prohibition.

COOLIDGE ASKS ANOTHER CUT IN TAXES

this promised reduction could not be effected immediately, and indicated that he was not in favor of the tax problem being taken up by a special session of Congress.

In accordance with President's program, the Government's expenditures for the next fiscal year will be $60,000,000 less than this year.

The total expenditures for 1925-26, including the payment of $1,000,000,000 toward the reduction of the public debt will be $3,287,851,378 compared with $3,434,943,505 this year and $3,906,677,510 last year.

Nearly half of the savings will be in current expenditures for army and navy, the estimate being $29,000,000 less than the amount spent this year.

"This reduction is made," the President said, "in accordance with my belief that we can have adequate national defense with a more modest outlay on the taxpayers' money.

TO STRENGTHEN AIR FORCES.

"Aside from the important factor of training personnel, our national defense is largely an industrial problem. Today the outstanding weakness in the industrial situation as it affects national defense is the inadequacy of facilities to supply air service needs.

"The airplane industry in this country is dependent almost entirely upon government business. To strengthen this industry is to strengthen our national defense. For the air service of the army and navy, and the air mail service, the estimates, including contract authorizations, amount to $38,943,000.

"This contemplates an expenditure with the industries of $16,287,000 for the procurement of air planes, engines and accessories. The remaining $20,458,000 is for maintenance, experimentation and research.

"The amount of $38,945,000, however, does not include all that will be available for this service in 1925. Accounts outstanding to the air service carrying estimates and unable war supplies will make a total availability conservatively estimated at $47,000,000.

"There is included in these estimates $50,000,000 to be set aside in the adjusted service certificate fund established under the World War adjusted compensation act of May 19, 1924.

"This is for the second payment to the fund to be made January 1, 1926. The first payment, due January 1, 1925, $100,000,000 is included in the deficiency bill now under consideration by congress."

CUTS INTEREST CHARGE

"The fixed debt charges are included in the regular budget of the Government. The most important of these is the cumulative sinking fund provided in the Victory-Liberty Loan Act. Retirements through this fund during the past fiscal year were about $298,000,000.

"The next items in size among the fixed debt charges are the retirements of securities received from foreign governments under debt settlements and the purchase and retirements of securities from foreign repayments.

"These continuing reductions of the public debt have a very material effect in maintaining such prices for Liberty Bonds.

"Interest paid in the fiscal year 1924 amounted to $940,000,000. It is estimated that this item will be $865,000,000 in 1925 and $830,000,000 in 1926. This saving of $110,000,000 in two years is the result of the reduction in the amount of the debt and decrease in the average rate of interest paid."

ACCUSES NURSE WITH 'POISON TONGUE'

Sick Room "Vamping" Is Charged by Ex-Wife in Suit for $400,000

The love of two women for a wealthy man now dead is echoed in a suit just filed by one of them for $400,000 against the other.

The man was Julius Baer, Boston importer, who died October 23 after going to Denver for his health.

His first wife, Mrs. Irene Baer, whom Baer discarded in the divorce courts, in a suit filed in Denver, charges Mrs. Elsie Baer with alienating the affections of her former husband.

According to Attorney Lee Friedman, of No. 206 Bay State road, one of the executors, the suit was started last August or September shortly before the death of Mr. Baer. He said Mrs. Irene Baer was present at the funeral in Boston.

She not only seeks $400,000 damages, but makes claim to receiver diamonds and rings valued at $40,000, which she alleges the second Mrs. Baer unrightfully possesses.

Julius Baer was a member of the firm of Louis Wolf & Company, No. 104 Pearl street, and also had New York connections. He was 48 years old when he died.

He rose into prominence during the World War when he tried to fix the embargo on German dolls and other toys held up at Rotterdam by the British military authorities. He declared that thousands of American children would have to go without toys for Christmas if the embargo were not raised.

Mrs. Baer declares that wife No. 2 poisoned the mind of her husband against her while acting as his nurse in Denver. As a result there was a separation, and on being unable to effect a reconciliation she divorced Baer.

Baer was married to his first wife in Chicago twenty-four years ago. He lived at No. 204 Brookline avenue.

SHOT HUSBAND, NOW GRANTED A DIVORCE

Wife Says He Wrote Her That Decree Would Make Him "Happiest Man"

How she shot her husband Frank J. Mealy, ex-Boston policeman, now serving a sentence in Dedham jail, was told today by Mrs. Katherine J. Mealy in her suit for divorce, at Dedham.

Mrs. Mealy testified she was married June 17, 1917, and that Mealy contributed little to her support.

She said it was while he was a member of the Boston Police Department that she shot him in a house in Brookline where she was employed as a domestic.

Mrs. Mealy said her husband had threatened her and was about to assault her when she obtained her employer's revolver and fired. Mealy was confined to the hospital for some time as a result. Mrs. Mealy was exonerated, she stated.

Asked by the court if the husband knew of the divorce proceedings, Mrs. Mealy's lawyer produced a letter written by Mealy in February, 1924, from Dedham jail to his wife. In it he said he had received notice of the divorce and in consequence was "the happiest man on two legs."

Judge Donahue granted a divorce to Mrs. Mealy.

There's Thrill in "Janice Meredith," Says Cook

By FREDERICK W. COOK,
Secretary of State.

MRS. COOK and I were greatly impressed by Marion Davies' new picture, "Janice Meredith." We not only enjoyed the splendor of the production, but we were deeply moved by the stirring dramatization of epochal events.

FREDERICK W. COOK

The photoplay is replete with finely portrayed emotional scenes that are bound to leave their impress long upon the memory. Cleverly conceived bits of comedy weave their way through a succession of attention gripping events.

To us "Janice Meredith" was a sustained inspiration and thrill from beginning to end.

All the characters in the photoplay, the finest work of its type I have yet seen, were splendidly interpreted, Miss Davies' conception of her role especially being an achievement of extraordinary worth.

Other Thrilling Rescues Effected by Police and Firemen at Springfield

Springfield has had several thrilling rescues of children and [illegible] marked up on the [illegible] blaze that destroyed the [illegible] tenement at No. 624 Worthington street today.

Seven children were aroused by a policeman and were forced to jump from windows and upper floors to the roof of an adjoining building 25 feet below.

Patrolman Eugene V. Mothersway and Charles Jennings, the latter chauffeur for Deputy Chief Graves, fought their way to the top floor and carried to safety two sleeping babies who had been overcome in the midst of tenants from the blazing building.

The fire started in a shoe store on the first floor and rushed upward through the building.

SUES HEALERS FOR WIFE'S DEATH; SEEKS $40,000

Pittsfield, Dec. 2.—Louis A. Burns of Thompsonville, Ct., today filed suits for $40,000 in Berkshire County Superior Court against Archie H. Van Ostrand and wife, Ellen N., charging them with responsibility for the death of his wife, Elizabeth Burns. The Van Ostrands have a magnificent home on South street. Burns' declaration says the Van Ostrands claimed great ability in curing and healing persons afflicted with bodily ailments, but did not take proper care or use proper skill in treatment of his wife. Burns was formerly a Pittsfield merchant. About two years ago he moved to Thompsonville.

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEY, DRINK WATER

Take Jad Salts at First Sign of Acid Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; then we suffer from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead or your back hurts; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

'L' ELIMINATES 8 STOPS ON BEACON ST.

Many Are Inconvenienced; Officials Claim Service Is 20 Per Cent. Faster

Elimination of eight stops on the Beacon street line of the Boston Elevated failed to please many patrons.

The complainants did not notice the warning signs attached to the poles at which they were accustomed to wait for cars. They were made aware of them, however, by an Elevated employe who drove up and down the street during the day to call attention to the signs.

Service on the Beacon street line was speeded up 20 per cent., according to General Manager Dana, as a result of the innovation. He declared that the complaints made to the company were few and that in a short time all the patrons would be familiar with the change.

The experiment is to continue for two months.

Charming Mrs. Webster Brings More Joy to Boston's "Just Out" Set

By BETTY ALDEN

ONE of the most charming and youthful-looking matrons of society is Mrs. Edwin S. Webster. And that, I firmly believe, is because she seems to enjoy herself most when she's doing something for the young people about her.

No matter where you go, whether it's the opera or the theatre or a dance, you're likely to see Mrs. Webster entertaining a company of the younger set. And inevitably these guests seem to be having the time of their young lives.

Last Winter the youngest daughter of the house, Miss Polly Webster, made her debut, and naturally the Websters gave a number of jolly affairs for her.

This season there's no debutante in the Webster family, but fortunately for the buds, Mrs. Webster is planning several delightful functions in honor of the "just out" contingent.

Prominent among these affairs is the dance which Mrs. Webster is giving this very night for Miss Catherine Robb, daughter of the Russell Robbs and one of the important debbies of the Winter. Miss Robb was presented this Hallowe'en at a dinner which her parents gave for her at the Concord Country Club.

THE Webster's town house at No. 306 Dartmouth street will be the scene of this evening's terpsichorean affair, and there are few mansions in the city more suited for large entertainments.

It was over a year ago that the Websters took possession of this residence, formerly the property of Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames.

The house, which stands at the corner of Dartmouth street and Commonwealth avenue, has a large conservatory, and the gorgeous blooms with which the latter is invariably filled make it one of the most colorful looking spots on the avenue.

Much of their time the Websters and their young family—there is also an older daughter, Miss Frances Webster, and a son, Edwin S., Jr.—spend at the intermediate home in Chestnut Hill. There is also a Summer home in New Hampshire's Holderness, which they call "Burleigh Brae." This place is not only the scene of jolly house parties during the mid-Summer months, but every now and then during the very middle of the cold season the Websters get up a party of young folks and go there for a bit of Winter sports.

WHILE we're talking about the buds—you can't help it these days, since the debbie is an all-important personage just now—I'll warrant that the ball which Mr. and Mrs. James J. Storrow are staging at the Somerset tomorrow night will be one of the most successful of the season.

The affair is for Miss Kathleen Rotch, younger daughter of Mrs. Henry Parkman, Jr., of Beacon street. For a number of years Kathleen Rotch has been known for her dash and skill as an equestrienne, and I note that she's every bit as dashing in the role of debutante.

The dance tomorrow evening will be preceded by a large dinner, also taking place at the Somerset.

A NUMBER of well-known matrons are enrolled as patron hostesses for the exhibition and sale of international peasant art which is being held tomorrow and Thursday at the West Newton residence of Mrs. Frederick P. Bloldgett, No. 288 Prince street.

The list of articles which the collection offers sounds tempting enough. There are exquisite laces from Spain and Italy, rare old brocades from Russia, painted panels from Norway, old-looking candlesticks and boxes from Persia, as well as antique coppers from Russia and France and other articles from Turkey, Palestine and China.

Tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 Miss Dai Buell, the well-known pianist, will play a Russian selection.

The hours of the exhibition, which will benefit the Frances E. Willard Settlement, are from 2 until 6, and tickets, at $1 each, may be obtained in advance either from the settlement or Mrs. Blodgett as well as from Mrs. Henry L. Mason of Bay State road or Mrs. Walter M. Pratt of the Hotel Somerset. Mesdames F. Lothrop Ames, Charles Sumner Bird, William H. Coolidge, George R. Fearing, John G. Palfrey and Edward C. Streeter are among the patron hostesses for the affair.

FORMER SOCIETY GIRL TO WED RICH ARGENTINE

Paris, Dec. 2.—Cupid's wings again have bridged the ocean—this time between Biarritz and Buenos Aires. The beautiful "Baby" Robinson, daughter of the late Monroe Robinson and the present Marquise de las Claras, is secretly engaged to Martino de Alzaga, nicknamed "Macoco," multi-millionaire son of the richest family in Argentina.

He is known as the "millionaire speed king" on account of his having driven in many international automobile races, including Indianapolis where he took a fleet of Isotta two years ago.

The Monroe Robinsons were leaders in New York society and when, following divorce, he died several years ago, the daughter took up her permanent residence at Biarritz.

'QUARANTINE' IS WELL ACTED COMEDY

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

IN THE general run of events on the business side of the curtain, good acting always may be depended upon to cover the sins of the dramatist. In the case of "Quarantine," which breezed into the Selwyn last evening on the season's first wintry blast, a rather thin comedy was turned into an enjoyable entertainment by an assortment of acting that was almost too good to be true.

Here the author rejoice, and offer up prayers for the continued health of [illegible] manager and Helen Hayes, whose talented hands, laid gently upon "Quarantine," brought more than happy results.

PERFORMANCE FINISHED.

"Quarantine" is the work of F. Tennyson Jesse, a woman who has not given her own sex any the best of such moral arguments that creep into the play. Starting as comedy, with an eloping couple safely aboard a deep sea liner, the action quickly developed into situations bordering on farce. The girl in the case turned out to be the wrong woman. That started the play and also all the trouble. It ended with all the mating done in proper form by the right people—and there you are.

Out of this material Mr. Blackmer and Miss Hayes found themselves in constant conflict—in situations familiar to those who attend the theatres regularly. But they did manage themselves exceedingly well. Miss Hayes, a mistress in the art of expression, bubbling with joyous youth, made an easy conquest of her audience, and Mr. Blackmer run true to form as the hard hitting young man who takes things into his own hands. His performance was finished and impressive.

A MERRY AFFAIR.

"Quarantine" was not [illegible] gay, not even in its acute moments. But it was a merry affair, well done and always entertaining. Without a spoken word, Percy Ames moved through the play as a "Silent Passenger." He was a mournful object to everybody but the audience — and it howled its appreciation. As no domestic comedy is complete without its comic servant we had Beryl Mercer in "Quarantine."

And Kay Laurel, she of former triumphs, as a Ziegfeld beauty, was discovered doing her artistic best in this more difficult form of drama. Her bit was emphasized by a smart costume smartly worn. Olga Osmova looked and acted for all the world as if that really is her name. She was a decided addition to the visual delights of the evening.

"Quarantine" is bright and cheerful, and wholly desirable.

Mary Ann Dentler of the Somerville Players has written a play, not yet named. It will be given at the Somerville next week.

"My Boy Friend," a musical comedy, by Jack Lait, will be the attraction at the Shubert, beginning next Monday.

"Chicken Feed" is announced as the play at the St. James next week.

"Lazybones" will follow "The Nervous Wreck" at the Hollis, opening on Monday, December 15.

CHORUS ALONE IS WHOLE SHOW IN 'TOP HOLE'

One will wait a long while for entertainment more satisfying than that of "Top-Hole," the musical comedy opening at the Tremont Theatre last night.

As its title suggests, "Top-Hole's" plot revolves around the ancient game, but non-players need not be apprehensive for there is not a line of reference to golfing but what is perfectly clear.

Ernest Glendinning, as the young golfing expert driven from home by a long-suffering dad to wrest a living from a reluctant world, gave his audience a treat in restrained comedy.

So mobile is his facial expression and so whimsical his voice, that the merest lift of an eyebrow suffices to accompany his lines. Never is he called upon to over-emphasize or burlesque. And, to cap it all for the lading, Ernest is very good to look upon.

Co-starring with Glendinning are Clare Stratton and Anne Milburn. Miss Stratton is a rare singer for musical comedy and likewise Miss Milburn. The latter, however, is also a superb dancer, and it seemed a pity that her role did not call for more appearances.

One lilting melody after another follows the fortunes of our young hero until a golfing tournament gives him the opportunity to demonstrate his skills and make good the task set by his stern dad, the judge, of whom Walter Walker gives one of those none-better interpretations.

And what a chorus. Every one of these bobbed-haired flappers is a dancer, not a display of the female form divine. Seldom has Boston seen a better-trained ensemble. Alone they are a whole show in themselves, and last night they seemed to draw as much deserved applause as the principals.

Fourteen-year-old Frederick J. Plimmer of No. 155 Mechanic street, Canton, went aroving in search of fame and adventure.

He failed to take into consideration the intense cold, with the result that he put himself in the way of a Hyde Park policeman.

In the warmth of the station house Frederick's love of adventure returned and he mystified the police by telling a varied story about walking from "somewhere" to New York. He said his name was John Cronin of No. 101 Charles street, Dorchester.

The police found John's imagination was in good order. The parents of young Plimmer had reported to the police he was missing.

MANIAC SLUGGER HUNTED IN MAINE

Ellsworth, Me., Dec. 2—A tall, light-complected man of extraordinary strength was being hunted here today by the police and deputy sheriffs who fear that he may add to the list of victims he has already attacked.

The two victims of the man, who is apparently a maniac, were recovering from their injuries today. Herbert R. Holmes, a storekeeper, was knocked down by him in a vacant lot and suffered a broken arm and cuts on the head. In another vacant lot, Millar I. Oakes, a hotel cook, was beaten to the ground by blows on the head.

A blackjack was used on both men.

75,000 Eels, Average 5 Feet, Cargo of British Ship

Philadelphia, Dec. 2—Seventy-five thousand eels, averaging five feet in length, caught along the St. Lawrence River, constituted the cargo of the British barge Horatio, which arrived here from St. Jean, Quebec.

The eels caused members of the crew no end of trouble as they fished them from the hools to the deck to be weighed.

Several times the men were forced to stop and unwind one or more eels from around their legs.

Gave Her Age as 19 for Business Reasons, Says Lita Grey's Mother

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.—Mrs Charles Chaplin, who until a few days ago was Lita Grey, the film comedian's leading woman, still is subject to California's compulsory schooling law, being sixteen years of age, the Los Angeles Times said today.

A photographic copy of a birth certificate revealed that the former Lillian Louisa McMurry, daughter of Robert McMurry, expert accountant, and Lillian Curry McMurry was born in the Hollywood district April 15, 1908.

Miss Grey's age appeared as nineteen in her marriage record.

Sought out by newspapermen, Mrs. Spicer, mother of Miss Grey, admitted her daughter's age had been incorrectly stated on the Mexican marriage license, but said it was "for business reasons." Business reasons also prompted the secrecy which surrounded the marriage preparations, she added.

Neither Chaplin nor his bride could be interviewed, reporters being met at the Chaplin front gate with a "Yes, we are not at home," from a Japanese servant.

The same servant made the same speech to Mrs. Spicer when she and her father, W. E. Curry, hurried to the Chaplin home. Curry said:

"Don't get the impression that Charlie and Lita were putting anything over on the family when she gave her age incorrectly. We noticed it as soon as we saw the notice of intention to marry, which was posted several weeks ago, according to Mexican requirements.

"We consulted a Mexican attorney here, who told us the marriage would be illegal if the age were incorrectly stated, so we started down to Guaymas to have it changed, but found when we got there that the marriage was legal, anyway."

SLEIGH STAGECOACH PURCHASED BY FORD

Woonsocket, Dec. 2.—A sleigh stagecoach, 120 years old, has been purchased by Henry Ford from Austin E. Green of City Mills, Mass., and will be added to the Ford collection of New England antiques at the Wayside Inn at Sudbury.

The stage coach formerly was in service between Boston and Worcester. It seats 20 passengers, twelve inside, and eight on top. In recent years it has been used to transport children to and from the City Mills public schools.

Half Brothers, Rival Business Men, Join Smith Family

Worcester, Dec. 2.—Despite the objections of each to the other, Solomon Ox and Morris Ochs, half-brothers, of Milford, were permitted by Judge Forbes in Probate Court to change their names to Smith.

Both asked for permission to make the change, but each objected to the other being granted it. The half-brothers are rival shoe merchants in Milford, and each claimed he only was known as Smith. They were both born in Poland.

About two years ago Morris brought a bill in equity against Solomon and had his brother enjoined from using in his advertising the words: "Smith, the wonderful shoeman," and similar expressions.

40 BOSTON FIREMEN INJURED

Forty Boston firemen are confined to their stations suffering with sore eyes and partial asphyxiation as a result of a four-hour battle with a blaze in a vault of the Federal Reserve Bank.

The fire, which was of undetermined origin, was discovered in a vault in the subbasement of the bank by a bank watchman and when the firemen arrived the vault was a seething furnace.

Files, records and bank receipts were stored in the vault and were all destroyed. Other documents enclosed in steel boxes were saved. The extent of the damage is not known.

Members of Engine 26, Ladder 8, and a rescue company who answered a still alarm from the bank, forced their way through thick smoke to the sub-basement, but the heat was so great that the oxygen in the basement was consumed and the men could not approach the blaze because of carbon monoxide gas.

A harry call brought gas masks and oxygen tanks to aid the firefighters. But even with these aids the men could only work in short shifts of a couple minutes' duration. Several firemen were partly overcome and received first aid treatment.

Heavy steel racks, on which were placed the papers stored in the vault were bent and twisted by the heat. Several of these collapsed, nearly pinning the firemen beneath them.

Every bank guard off duty was summoned to the bank and a heavily armed guard was thrown about the building to prevent looting.

Americans Don't Know Love, Says Pavlowa

PAVLOWA IN BOSTON TODAY

Famous dancer with her flashing dark beauty appears to be about thirty. But she admits many more years.

Dancer Advises Girls Not to Marry for Money; Warns of Business Men

By GRACE DESCHAMPS

We don't know how,
Oh, no, we don't!

Pavlowa says so—toast of princess, spirit of the glittering court of Nicholas Romanoff—"divinity of the dance!"

"Mais non!" and Pavlowa shakes her head. And Pavlowa means in English, "Oh, no you don't!"

"American doesn't know how to love . . . knows how to build cars and make money, oh, so much money! But to love—ah, not an American"

Wistful, flamelike, eager—and sad, withal—this is Pavlowa now. She will dance for Boston again, the flashing rhythms of the Russian ballet and the exotic movements of the Japanese and Hindu rites.

She arrived in Boston today, followed by eyes that marvelled at her still youthful beauty.

But it's a wistful Pavlowa and some of the fire that ignited intrigue in the royal courts of Europe has burned itself out.

She comes with a message to America, to Boston, to Boston girls!

MESSAGE TO GIRLS.

"Close the door on that oung bank clerk—you'll never, never be happy with him!

"A business man—never will you be happy with one! Take the laborer or the poverty-stricken boy who plays in the orchestra, but the business man, never!

"And don't marry for money. To talk to Americans I sto talk about money. I want to tell the young people to take their youth while they have it not to waste it building for some comfortable, well-fed future that will leave them without a taste for it when it comes.

"Money and ambition—these are the beginning and end of things here. If you could just forget them —for a moment.

"Divorce, unhappiness creeps into the hopes and homes of American couples because business has unlocked the door for them. The man thinks of his job, always his job. The woman goes alone t the theatre and he goes out alone or with men friends.

"In Europe it is different. Not so much money, but more romance. People do not get tired of things, of each other, of themselves.

"I am not finding fault with Americans, oh, no! And the young people here are happy, I am sure! But they have shut out chivalry and romance, the only two things that make life worth living.

HUSBAN DIN BACKGROUND.

"Yes, if you want a practical, comfortable, prosaic life—marry the salesman, the bank clerk, the business man. But if life means something else, don't be afraid of a failure that surely can't be as sad as a half-asleep middle age with someone who's forgotten how to love you!"

Fifty years old is Pavlowa, and she knows whereof she speaks. "Thirty," a scrutinizing person might say of her flashing dark beauty. Exquisitely gowned and as selfinflating—almost—as of yore, is the wisp of a dancer who smiled her way into royal hearts.

In the background is Pavlowa's husband, "Monsieur Andre," and that is all Pavlowa will say of him. Her parting word is the picture of her ideal husband:

"Merry he must be, able to laugh. Pleasantness, oh, there's a world in that! Kind ,too, he'd have to be—kind and broad enough to see both my side of things and his.

"He may be light or he may be dark—perhaps I like them light better. And he'd need to be tall, for tall or short isn't everything. And I wouldn't care if he hadn't a coin to his name.

"I would wait for him to 'make his pile,' I'd take him while it was spontaneous between us.

"And if it "Divorced,' you say? Oh, that's luck, just luck!"

Was "Monsieur Andre" her ideal husband?

"Mais non! Of course not!"

SCHOOL CLOSED BECAUSE OF CHILDREN'S PLAGUE

Barre, Dec. 2.—Dreading the possibility of an epidemic of infantile paralysis and scarlet fever, the board of health has ordered the closing of the Centre Grammar School for ten days, and all children under ten years of age have been quarantined to prevent their attending the movies or other public entertainments. Several cases of scarlet fever have been reported, and infantile paralysis has a number of victims, among them eight-year-old Richard Paull, son of Dr. and Mrs. M. H. Paull, and Verna Hodge, ten, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Hodge.

HURLS TWINS 3 STORIES, MOTHER LEAPS OUT, TOO

New York, Dec. 2.—Throwing her three-weeks-old twin babies to a courtyard from their home on the third floor of an upper Madison avenue apartment house today, Mrs. Bessie Katz, twenty-eight years old, then jumped after them. One of the babies died while being taken to a hospital and the other baby and the mother had fractured skulls, from which hospital physicians did not think they would recover.

Despondency caused by a nervous breakdown was responsible for the woman's act.

HARVARD'S OVERSEERS IGNORED

Didn't Know of Dispute Over Baker, Says Letter in Crimson Attack on Lowell

One more broadside against President Lowell and the Fellows of Harvard University was directed today by the Harvard Crimson in connection with the resignation of Professor George Pierce Baker of 47 Workshop fame and his transfer to Yale.

Proof the broadside resulted from a letter to the Crimson by Langdon P. Marvin, New York attorney and member of the board of overseers.

Attorney Marvin declared that the overseers had never been consulted regarding the work or resignation of Professor Baker and first learned of the disaster through the newspapers.

Another letter to the Crimson, written by Sidney H. Bacastow, junior at Harvard, charges in connection with the Baker controversy, that "money and money makers are controlling Harvard's policy."

LOWELL'S ACTS.

Commenting on Atty. Marvin's letter the Crimson today said editorially:

"If through no the recent years the overseers have never been consulted on the merits of Professor Baker's cases, who has presumed to turn down without discussion, his requests for funds, the plans for equipment, even his offers to raise funds for himself for his work?

"Clearly the President and Fellows have been seriously at fault. Too often in recent years, such autocratic action on the part of the President and Fellows has wrought lamentable situations.

"Less of a disposition to make arbitrary decisions and more of a tendency to consult alumni, faculty and undergraduates in all matters of important university policy, would do much to promote harmony in the Harvard family and to eliminate serious blunders."

CRIMSON'S MONEY RULE.

Among expressions of indignation at the treatment accorded Professor Baker by Harvard was a telegram received today by the Crimson from Philip Barry, Yale graduate and 47 Workshop student, author of the 1922 Harvard prize play, "You and I," produced on Broadway.

Blackstone in his letter said: "We are to build a new school of business administration at a cost of $5,000,000," Professor Baker has resigned. Q.E.D. What does this mean but that money and money-makers are controlling Harvard's policy, that the university is being run by merchants for the benefit of those who aspire to become merchants."

DEFENDENT FREED IN BIG BLACKMAIL CASE

DORA DUMB
Declared not guilty of her husband's union suit.

EGBERT GRAFT
Claimed to be greatest criminal in history of police.

Judge Orville Knatt today handed down a verdict of not guilty in the famous suit for two million trading stamps, brought by Egbert Graft, international racketeer man against Mrs. Dora Dumb. Graft claimed that Mrs. Dumb had failed to make payment after a written pledge for suppression of the items that her husband, prominent richman and receiver leader, wore, during the Winter the heavy cloud, dark blue underthings known as pantaloonetts. Dumb, who writes style notes for the theatre programs and is known as the perfect dresser, admitted paying Graft huge bunches of green passes for silence last Winter.

JUDGE KNUTT
Whose decision in this case covered 42 mail order house catalogues.

HENRY DUMB
Whose essay on the poetry of clothes was one of the best sellers.

The defendant's final plea was the crowning factor in the case.

"Listen, Judge," she stated in a voice choked with emotion, "we have one of those oil burners in our home and you know now that it. They don't as make it work, so, I ask you, what is the use?"

In handing down his decision, Judge Knutt said: "It has been brought out that the plaintiff has made knowledge. He didn't like them himself, and I don't blame him. The defendant has also established has sufficient trouble laundering the things without worrying about everything will come out all right in the wash."

New York, Dec. 2—Testimony concerning the body of Frederick Schneider, her common-law husband, failed today to move Mrs. Anna Buzzi, on trial a second time for Schneider's murder. Mrs. Buzzi, who was granted a new trial by the Court of Appeals following her conviction of murder in the first degree, listened without visible emotion to a description of Schneider's death.

RED SOX PURCHASE PITCHER KALLIO OF SALT LAKE CLUB

CONNOLLY GOES IN DEAL

Hartford, Ct., Dec. 2.—President Bob Quinn of the Red Sox put over the first deal in the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs today when he announced the purchase of Pitcher Kallio, a right-hander, of the Salt Lake club, for a cash consideration, and Outfielder Joe Connolly.

Kallio won eighteen, lost fourteen in 1924.

Connolly was acquired by the Red Sox from Cleveland along with Steve O'Neill and Bill Wambsganss in exchange for George Burns and Chick Fewster. Connolly was farmed out to the San Antonio club during the 1922 season, but was recalled last Spring. He stayed with the club for the first turn about the American League circuit and was then sent back to the Bears, who were in need of outfielders.

Until a late hour last night, four eminent gentlemen sat with heads together in a room just off the lobby of the Hotel Bond, official headquarters of the annual meeting.

They were Col. Jacob Ruppert and Edward G. Barrow, respectively president and business manager of the New York Yankees, and George Sisler and Phil Ball, manager and president of the St. Louis Browns.

Perhaps their discussion, if any, was purely social. However, it was reported Urban Shocker, spitball pitcher, was mentioned somewhere in the general conversation.

Some time ago Sisler let it be known that Shocker had outlasted his welcome in St. Louis. The Yankees hastened to acknowledge the fact that the young man might be tolerated in New York.

The original tip on the Shocker deal was that the Yanks had declined to part company with Waite Hoyt, but might do business, offering Bob Shawkey or Sam Jones if that proved acceptable to St. Louis. The names of Outfielders Williams of the Browns and Meusel of the Yankees also figured in the discussion which followed.

STALLINGS MEN FOR SALE.

George Stallings and Walter Hapgood of the Rochester Club are here ready to dispose of Outfielder Burke, Second Baseman Hood, Shortstop Jenkins and Pitchers Horan and Grender.

Baltimore, it is understood, is ready to part with Joe Boley, shortstop, once a highly desirable young man. The demand for Joseph is not what it was, however. Rube Parnham, pitcher, now with the Athletics, is regarded as a more logical investment at this stage of the proceedings.

ONE ACTUAL SALE MADE.

However, definite action, for the most part, was a postponed issue. The following were exceptions:

Eric Erickson, formerly pitcher of the Washington Senators, was sold from Minneapolis to Toronto, and the fee was broadcast that the next meeting would go to Catalina Island at the earnest behest of Oscar Reichow of the Los Angeles Club, speaking for Bill Wrigley.

Contrary resolutions are expected to be offered by Dallas, Asheville, N. C., & Atlanta, the latter even going so far as to send D. Leon Wil-

3 TEAMS HAVE LAP ON FIELD IN 6-DAY RACE

New York, Dec. 2.—As the bike riders in Madison Square Garden completed the thirty-fourth hour of the six-day grind today three teams were tied for first place, eight teams one lap behind and the others apparently out of the race.

The leaders were McNamara and Vanheuvelpen, Walthour and Georgetti and Egg and Grandengo. The first team led in points with 91.

Oscar Egg was in the lead when 832 miles had been pedalled.

The record distance for thirty-four hours is 746 miles 3 laps, made in 1915 by Cameron and Kaiser.

At 8 o'clock the contestants were riding on flat. Most of them were weary from the pace set last night. Two teams were two laps behind and eight teams were one lap behind.

Twenty minutes of feverish pedaling preceded the tie of the three leading teams. Up to that time Egg and Grandengo had led the field by one lap, which they had gained shortly after 9 o'clock last night when they outsprinted Goosens and Fograse of Belgium.

NOTRE DAME TO PLAY PENN STATE AND ARMY

New York, Dec. 2.—Notre Dame will meet two Eastern teams next Fall, according to an announcement made by Knute Rockne, head coach of the South Bend eleven. The Army will be one of the opponents, and while the place where the games will be played has not been settled as yet, it most likely will be New York. The second game will be against Penn State at State College, Pa. The Army game will be played on October 17 and Penn State October 24.

Coach Rockne explained that his biggest task was to arrange home and home games and that Penn State agreed to such arrangement.

Mammas Enthuses Over Labriola Tilt

Harry Mamas, Greek wrestler, is enthused that he has been matched to meet Leone Labriola, the "Lion of Italy," at the Grand Opera House on Thursday night.

"They tell me," said Harry, "that this Italian is very strong. I have always made a specialty of taming strong men. I have defeated a lot of big, strong men in my travels over the country, and I want to show the fans of Boston how I do it.

"I expect to beat Labriola decisively in our finish match. I think the Greeks of Boston want a real wrestler to represent them on the mat, and I want to be their representative."

Preceding this bout, Stanley Stasiak, the Lion of Poland, will hook up with Frank Yusko, Lithuanian heavyweight champion.

Chief Montour, the Indian champion, will meet Charlie Donnell, the Norwood policeman, in a one-fall contest.

ALL URGED TO HELP BASKET FUND DRIVE

The drive for the sporting department section of the Christmas Basket Fund is under way in earnest. The holidays are fast approaching and everybody must throw himself into the spirit of the season and do everything possible to bring joy and gladness to thousands of little ones who would be without Christmas dinner if it were not for this great charity.

Nick Young, dramatic editor of the Boston American, was a caller. After handing out some stove league gossip on baseball, Nick made a mass attack on his check book and added $5.00 to our fund. It does not take long for these $5.00 contributions to put the fund into big figures.

But then you need not give as much as $5.00. That's what we told Young Happy when he paraded into the sporting department. So the young man gave $2.00 with the promise that he would make it $5.00 if we could get $10 from Happy, Sr., King of Boston newsboys. And we feel certain Young Happy will have to make it $5.00.

There was also a collection among the boxing fans at the International tournament conducted by the St. Joseph's T. A. Society at Mechanics Building. President William Cuddy gave his full co-operation in this matter as did the members of the Boxing Commission. We have not the total of this collection as these lines are handed to the tender mercies of the printer, but the figures will be published as soon as we get them.

The boxing fans are always generous. They never fail to do their bit for the fund. Football, baseball and other sport followers are also expected to fall in line.

And then there are the promoters, athletes and the dear old managers. As Tiny Tim said: "May God bless each and every one of them."

Red Sox to Train at New Orleans

The address of the Boston Red Sox during the Spring training session will be New Orleans. President Bob Quinn made the announcement last night after Pitcher Fabinski picked San Antonio and almost starved for exhibition games. Quinn is satisfied New Orleans won't fail him on that point, while he says the accommodations are better there also.

liams, secretary of its Chamber of Commerce, post hasts to the scene of the debate.

Jack Hendricks, Red manager, said today that he had abandoned his quest of Bert Ellison, player-manager of San Francisco, and will play Rube Bressler on first base next season.

In a legislative way, the tip is out that the minors will strongly oppose the Col. Ruppert project for increasing the 40? season major league player limit from forty to fifty men, and the number of years under which a man may be sent out on option from two to five.

Opposition also has developed against Connie Mack's plan to have the player receive ten per cent. of his purchase price. However, there is a possibility of a compromise whereby the majors and minors will split the player's commission on his purchase price to include the ten per cent. which will go to the player.

Rumors of the return of the old New England League, and rumblings concerning the sales of several clubs were heard as the magnates gathered.

Talk of club sales included Bridgeport and New Haven of the Eastern League, Paul D. Nary of the American Association and Newark of the International League.

Harwood and Stallings are still keen for the Bridgeport franchise, but declared today that he would take another Eastern League club if he couldn't land in the Park city.

EDDIE EAYRS SLATED TO SUCCEED BURKETT

Hartford, Dec. 2.—Eddin Eayrs, ex-Brown University and major league star, who was manager of the Worcester team during the season of 1923, will in all probability be chosen to succeed Jess Burkett as the Worcester manager for the 1925 season, it was announced today.

Raisin Pie
ask a man!

Raisin pie is a favorite with men. They have it frequently at restaurants for lunch. Because they like its satisfying goodness.

Men would like to have raisin pie more often at home. You will please your men folks by serving it for supper. Have raisin pie tonight—and see!

Don't bother to bake it yourself. I know how to bake the kind of raisin pies men like. I use the same materials that you would use. The raisins are Sun-Maid Raisins. The same that you buy in the Sun-Maid package—big, plump, juicy raisins, the choicest fruit of California's vineyards.

Cut through the golden, flaky crust into one of my juicy, racy raisin pies and learn how good real raisin pie can be! Serve one tonight.

Jill shook her brown head. "I don't know that I should tell you [illegible] Burns is [illegible] cause he sees to while thing."

"Who's Henry?"

"Oh, that blond young man at the books, you know, Henry Fawcett. I have told him all about it, but he [illegible] anything in this line that I [illegible]

Heard Him Tell.

"I heard him tell [illegible] the best agency [illegible] he gets [illegible] city. I don't know what she says to him, but I never get a raise!"

"That's just where the trouble lies. The town is too small to offer [illegible] law, and I ain't go to take [illegible] can't leave."

"I have a mother and a younger sister to look out for, and mother's born and raised here, always lived in the same house. To uproot her would be to tear her away from all her interests—I just couldn't! Besides, I haven't the money to swing a moving."

"Then take a trip to the city and see your Mr. Klinsi! Tell him the whole truth," urged Rob Burns earnestly.

Jill nodded miserably. "I've been on the verge of doing that a hundred times, especially when I've written an unusually good letter and see her sign it! Here's what keeps me from doing it.

Cora has a husband, an invalid, a dandy fellow, whom we all adore. He and her aunt are dependent on Cora. What's more, the aunt is my mother's best friend, which is why I've never said anything at home. You see how it is?" She looked at him with desperate brown eyes.

Bob Nodded.

This time Rob nodded, a perplexed frown between his eyes. "I see," he said, understandingly. "It is a problem. And Henry's solution?"

Jill blushed. "Oh, he wants to marry me!"

Rob looked irritated. "What! He has his nerve. You certainly would not throw yourself away on that [illegible] fellow," anxiously.

"But I don't want to, Rob, to think of my life that somebody got the best of me in business that I could not make good in the open. It would seem such a weak surrender. I'd never have my self-respect again."

"I know how you feel. I'd feel the same way. Jill, you don't mind if I call you Jill, do you? Jill, will you let me swing things? It happens that I know Mr. Kline rather well—his wife is my sister."

Jill's eyes flashed into eagerness. "Oh, you don't mean you'd speak to him, that you'd really speak for me, that—"

"Yes, I'm going to speak to him, but you'll have to pay me."

Jill fell back, the joy of the moment was gone. Pay him! Well, what she had imagined, that he'd do it for nothing; that he liked her well enough for that?

It was business, simply business. When it came to liking anybody, they all fell for the lovely Cora. Jill laughed and held her head high. "Certainly I fully assented to, Mr. Burns. Name your price, as long as it is nothing dishonorable."

His Terms.

"I'll state my terms when I get results for you," he answered briskly.

"Thank you," Jill's voice was coolly polite as she rose from the bench.

"How about some ice cream or an other dance?"

"I'm sorry, but it's late. I must be going." She suddenly felt very tired, tired enough to cry. But—

It was only a few days later when, Jill, coming from the store room, stopped in the little hallway, hearing voices in the office. Rob Burns and Mr. Kinsi—why, he was to look out of the store room.

"George," Rob Burns was saying, "I want to show your office to your manager here." Jill held her breath in sheer delight—now it was coming the right! "You've got a woman here who is worth her weight in gold."

"I know it, Rob, Cora's out of the ordinary." Jill smiled in the hall.

"That is hardly the word for it," she heard Rob say. "Cora Graham is a genius. Looked away in the like that. Not a beautiful woman, but a clever one with a big future ahead of her." Jill did not listen for any more, but stole back to the store room and leaned her head against a high case, too wretched to stand upright.

Fall For Cora.

She might have known that he too, would fall for Cora Graham.

How long she stood there Jill did not know, only that suddenly a voice called her name, and she flew to a bit of mirror and began to powder her nose vigorously.

"Jill!" It was Cora. "Oh, I've the best news! I've got another raise!"

"Rob Burns managed that," Jill told her in a colorless voice. "Now I will look [illegible] but, you're powdering your [illegible] You look as though you were [illegible] it has an [illegible] off. Think of it! You're to be manager [illegible]"

Famous Firsts

By Mark Stuyvesant

MANY inventions that we think of as discoveries of the modern mind, turn out, upon investigation, to be "old stuff." Time and again we are made to realize the full force of the saying that "there is nothing new under the sun." Accordingly, we find that artificial incubation, the hatching of eggs by artificial means, which is an industry of comparatively recent development in Europe and America, was known to the Egyptians and the Chinese almost from time immemorial.

At Berma, an Egyptian city, this trade has the dignity of a secret profession.

Travelers, however, have managed to secure a general idea of the processes involved in the Egyptian system. To begin with, there is a brick building called a Mamal. It consists of four large ovens, each large enough to admit several men at one time. The ovens are arranged in pairs, one oven being above the other. The eggs are placed in the middle of the floor of the oven. The fire is lighted in the gutter around the sides.

The attainment of the right degree of heat entirely depends, so far as can be determined by an outsider, upon the skill of the personal employed. When the proper degree of heat has been attained, the entrance door of the Mamal is plugged with a coarse hemp fiber. After ten or twelve days the fires are allowed to go out.

It is estimated that ninety million eggs are hatched each year in this way at Berma. The method employed has reached such a degree of perfection that many more than two-thirds of the eggs put in are successfully hatched.

It was not until 1824 that the incubator came into use in the modern world. Walther constructed an incubator that could be used by farmers' wives for hatching chicks. It consisted of a metal box with a double wall. There were pipes connected with the kitchen boiler that opened into the walled space around the sides, bottom and top of the incubator. Into this space steam from the kitchen boiler passed. Ventilating holes and plugs into which thermometers were placed pierced the door, thereby affording a means of gauging the temperature.

This incubator has been improved upon from time to time, and has finally resulted in the invention of one incubator that is used for hatching chicks and another used for a very different purpose, for rearing babies who are too weak to survive under normal conditions or who are prematurely born. The baby incubator was constructed in 1880 by Dr. Tarnier and was first used at the Paris Maternity Hospital.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

STATISTICS show that there are more weddings at this time of the year than there are in June. Thousands of men are getting married so that they won't have to attend to the furnace this Winter.

ON THESE cold mornings a man likes to have somebody who can get up and put the windows down.

COAL has to be brought up from the cellar and if a man isn't married he has to do it.

HUNDREDS of men like to eat their breakfast in bed and somebody has to bring it to them.

THEY get married in the Winter and divorced in the Summer.

THEN when next Winter comes around they get married again.

ONCE in a while they marry the same wife if she's still single.

A LOT of husbands don't even get divorces, they just apply for a Summer operation.

OF COURSE some men stay married the year 'round. During the hot weather a wife can turn the electric fans on and bring you ice water.

IT'S wonderful to have a wife around the house during the rainy season. She can look for your umbrella for you and hunt for your rubbers.

NOT only that, she can fix a lunch to take to work with you providing you have a job.

STILL a lot of married men don't work during the Winter as it's too cold.

AND in the Summer they lay off because it's too hot.

IN FACT they don't do anything all year except sit back and enjoy their married life.

MARRIAGE is a business and they like to hang around the home office.

ONE guy makes a practice of staying home all day. He only left the house once last Winter and that was to go out and pick his wife up of the icy sidewalk where she had fallen down with an armful of wood.

HE WAS scared to death that she had broken her leg. He realized that if a thing like this happened he'd have to bring the wood in himself for the next couple of months.

A NEW YORK husband advises single men to go out right away and get married. He says you can't imagine what a comfort a wife can be during the cold weather.

3-MINUTE JOURNEYS

By Temple Manning.

IF there is one place where one does not expect to go fishing, it is on the desert. One usually thinks of camel-riding or horse racing near some oasis as the sole sports of the arid wastes of sand of the Sahara. But, strange as it may seem you find fish in most of the water spots and wastes of the desert, even though they are a great distance from any river.

What is even more strange is the fact that these fish are of no rare, exotic varieties, but are quite like those found in most other parts of the world where fish are customarily found. For the most part, these fish belong to a variety of the minnow family which is abundant in the warm, fresh waters of Europe. There is also a perch-like fish that is common throughout Africa. The true perch, however, is not found there, but if the fish are not unusual in their variety, the fact of their appearance in these spots is certainly astounding. Scientists have not as yet been able to come to any definite conclusion as to the way they manage to get there.

Among the theories on which they are working is the eggs of these fish are carried in particles of mud or in weeds clinging to the claws of the birds which visit these water holes. These birds travel very rapidly, so it is possible that this might be done.

An interesting fact in connection with this phenomenon is that these fish, although they come from subterranean waters, are not blind. In most cases of subterranean water fish, blindness has come, in the long lapse of time, to be a standard characteristic. This is true of the fish of the Mammoth Cave, Kentucky.

Although nobody knows exactly or definitely how the fish of the desert arrived at their destination, the fact remains that they are there and that fishing is a legitimate part of the desert's sports.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOUR child, or even you, yourself, may be the victim of scarlet fever.

You know that this disease is catching if for no other reason than because your health department has regulations by which you are to isolate the afflicted member of your family from other members of your family. You are to keep "sick" people away from the homes and as a means to this end you are to placard your residence.

When one cough or sneeze an invisible—sometimes a visible spray is forced out of your mouth or nostrils. Sometimes in the course of this disease flakes or strings of mucus are thrown out in the process of coughing or sneezing or expectorating.

It is about the ordinarily invisible spray to which I wish to call your particular attention. It consists of the secretion of your mouth, throat, lungs or nostrils, and if you happen to have scarlet fever it carries with it the germs that lie upon these surfaces.

Dr. Ludwig Hektoen, the distinguished pathologist of the University of Chicago, writes:

"When a patient blows his nose, or holds his hand before his face as he sneezes or coughs, or puts his fingers to his lips or face, the secretions from the throat and nose are smeared on his fingers. As these secretions contain the germs of the disease, the germs are transferred to whatever objects the patient handles, such as playthings, towels, cups, letters, etc. If any of these things are handled soon after by a second person that person may contaminate his fingers and carry the germs to his mouth or nose and thus introduce them into his body. Similar results may follow from shaking hands with the patient."

It will be seen from this that scarlet fever is carried by particles of secretion from the throat and nose, transferred from a sick person to a well person. This takes place by kissing, by bits of mouth-spray lodging in the mouth and nose, by touching hands and other parts that have been smeared with spit and mucus, by handling things smeared with spit and mucus, such as clothes, towels, playthings, lead pencils, eating utensils, and by food, especially milk, in which material from the mouth, throat and nose has lodged. Biting the fingers to the mouth and face, which is so common with children, makes this transfer an easy matter.

"If the exchange of throat and nose discharges and other secretions could be prevented," says Dr. Hektoen, "most only scarlet fever but also measles, diphtheria, tonsilitis, mumps and other diseases would disappear."

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

SOMETIMES we meet along life's way, folks sweet as flowers, blithe and gay, and then we knew that they've been sent to make the rest of us content; content with days that might be drear were not these sunshine people near. For are their smiles make bright the day, their glances drive the shades away; like light in some once-cheerless room, their presence wakens song and bloom. Sometimes our courage ebbs away and leaves us to defeat, dismay, we feel the fight has all been vain, we lack the will to try again. And then—some stranger passes by and with his keen yet kindly eye discerns our trouble and our need and proves himself a friend indeed. Because he gives, not gold or lands but, better still, his selfless hands, he encrages, shining like the sun, his strength until the race is run. He gives us freely of his cheer and fears and sorrows disappear. Oh, such as these we sometimes find, and they are proof that life is kind! And if we tread dark ways gain, we still if we tread dark ways gain, we still can reach the glad refrain of songs their proud hearts loved so well that yet within our spirits dwell and reverence, through year on year, shall we quite lose their hope and cheer.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Business success usually is built on a foundation of facts. Information is the raw material of most fortunes.

Rockefeller once remarked to me that, next to knowing thoroughly your own business, it was most important to know what others are doing. Think you that such successful organizations as Standard Oil, American Telephone & Telegraph, the National City Bank of New York, Woolworth's, have been built up on guesswork? Such concerns have taken the greatest pains to gather and analyze all kinds of information having a bearing upon their business. Hit-or-miss methods miss more often than they hit.

I had lunch this week with a very successful advertising man. His definition of advertising, which this terse statement: "Advertising is designed to create a state of mind through telling facts."

* * *

Why have certain States and certain cities and certain resorts progressed more than others? Largely because they have seen to it that the people at large were repeatedly told facts about these localities. Los Angeles and Palm Beach spring to mind as illustrations.

New England, on the other hand, has suffered. It is now generally admitted, because it has failed to present its advantages and its products.

The South unquestionably has wonderful potentialities for growth and prosperity. But the South also has not yet bestowed upon the country what it now has and is. What the South must do if it is to advance is to get out and shout at the top of its voice to the world facts, facts, facts.

This subject has been much in mind since I made an extensive tour through the South. The conclusion I have reached is that the South should actively address itself to establishing a permanent organization to conduct an educational plan. In other words, the South should forthwith start forming an organization to furnish facts, facts, facts.

* * *

The expense could be met by voluntary subscriptions from leading business, financial, real estate interests, public utilities and public spirited individuals in the South.

POLITICAL COMEDY AT SOMERVILLE THEATRE

Nina Buckmaster, a beautiful young maiden, who was the Democratic candidate of the Women's Party for mayor last night at the Somerville Theatre, where Mr. Meader's plays are presented as a stock company, in "Strange Bedfellows." The play, produced here for the first time, has many redeeming features. The first story is one that should appeal to everybody, second, it is intensely interesting and never tiresome, third it is primed with laughter from beginning to end.

One of the most interesting characters ever seen on the Somerville stage is "Butch" McKenna, Nina's campaign manager, a political boss and political "fixer" "boss." In the hands of Frank Thomas it was remarkably well portrayed. Marie Du Denfer, as Nina's mother, made an impression, as did Edward Clarke Lilley, in the part of Nina's husband, and Landon Hall, as one of the newspaper women who brought "Butch" into the campaign.

GUARDIAN GETS DUE IN ST. JAMES COMEDY

Ina Claire's starring vehicle, "The Gold Diggers," by Avery Hopwood was produced at the St. James last night by the Jee-on-Stock company.

It is a story of footlight butterflies and their proverbial guardian who, according to Hopwood, is the nephew from the confinements of a chorus girl, to himself caught in a matrimonial web.

The leading roles were played by Bernard Nedell, Horace Nelsons, Elsie Hitz and Roberta Lee Carlisle.

REACTION HOPE OF 'BUCKET BROKERS'

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

For several days past the "bucketsers" have been growing more and more desperate.

The plain fact is that, as a market rises, it becomes more and more difficult for a "broker" who has bucketed or accepted himself the risk on a customer's order. If called on to pay, the chances are that he will not be able to settle.

A market reaction is the "bucket broker's" hope.

Incidentally, this is why we are so frequently urged by the well informed to trade only with stock brokerage concerns of known reliability.

The "bucketeer" prospers, of course, in a bear market. Look for some "bucket shop" crashes soon.

The writer understands that some alleged brokerage concerns have reached the stage where partners either order the bookkeeper, assistant or also instruct clerks and stenographers to tell the customer the partners are "out of town."

Harvard Economic Service, in letter on general business situation, says:

"March-June decline in average wholesale prices has been entirely canceled by the upward movement since July. The average level in October was the same as that in February, the previous high point of the year, and during November the upward movement has continued. The most prominent and significant feature of the general advance was the tremendous rise in farm products, notably corn, wheat, hogs and, to a lesser extent, cattle.

"It is our belief that the rise of the general average of commodity prices is not at an end, and that, although increase as has occurred does not mean that a period of gold inflation has yet begun.

"Inflation may be hard to define, but it certainly does not arise, even though commodity prices advance considerably, so long as such increases are accompanied by proportionate increases in physical production and the general volume of trade.

"We are now witnessing natural recovery from the recession which occurred in 1923, and so long as the volume of production and trade continues to increase, it is not our opinion premature to speak of inflation.

"With business throughout the country showing something like normal, with the margin of profits moderate and in some cases unsatisfactory, and with improved but healthfully to the stimulus of firmer commodity markets, it would seem that conditions favor the growth of genuine prosperity and not of the false prosperity which accompanies inflation.

"Meanwhile improved conditions in Europe appear to have led to a substantial reduction in our export trade imports, and for this reason there is less ground than there was last Spring for fearing that with normal a period of inflation may develop."

LAWSON LOST FIRST PLUNGE

up a cool cash oyster stew, could be had for fifteen cents. To this oyster he added the lads used to flock for hours on end and talk in their pompous fashion of ways of affairs of the street that, for them, held such charm.

Lawson's Scheme

Into this midday haven young Tom Lawson rushed one day, bubbling with an idea. It may have been "Johnnie Fitz" and "Charley" Hayden who were there before him, or they may have been Albert Burrage and the incoming "It" or, at any rate, some of the parts were gathered before him to partake of the alluring stew, first of the season fat and the incoming "It" season lean.

"I've got a scheme," announced Lawson, full of the spirit of his idea, "and a scheme that will build up me a lot of money—if you chaps will help."

Even at that early age—Lawson was then "goin' on fourteen"—the boy-to-be was developing the financial genius that drew forth admiration in later life. His youthful "pals" suffered the distinction of their comrade to go unchallenged.

"What is it?" they chorused eagerly and the business of conveying stew to mouth was suspended momentarily.

The heads went together and Lawson confided his plan. "Why, it's simple as sin," he declared. "—heard it today in the office. If we can raise some money together we can play it and it's sure to make money for us."

Instantly the eagerness increased. There was bunting for the Hayden Fourth of July bonfire, lunch period. While the conspirators broke up to return to their various offices the plan was hatched and Lawson, by mutual consent and without word of mouth, had been appointed the leader in the drive for a huge fortune.

Those lads, tollers all, were the saving variety of youth, free from the lure of the movies, the ice cream cone, the lollitop and baseball. Each of them, for want of other purpose than enough tie very stake of their poor homes, had formed early the habit of hoarding their hard-won pennies and dimes in tin cans, in screwed drawers, in candy bags—in any variety of secret caches—with an eye to some day so investing them and laying the foundation of their fortunes.

Brought Savings

On the day following the conference young messengers brought their savings to

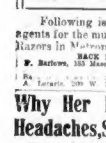
Why Her Miserable Headaches, Sick Stomache and Pimply Skin Have Gone



Says Everyone Should Make INDICAN TEST Same as She Did

Miss Betty Finch, driven in "Earl Carroll Vanities," one of the red heroes of Indigestion.

The Indican test has taken medium Miss Finch, as it has a thousands of others, that sick headaches, broken out skin and sallow complexion, simply cannot be permanently relieved until the poison is removed from the system.

Indican shows there is poison being pumped into your blood, and unless you stop this poison it may cause serious sickness — perhaps appendicitis or neuritis, gastritis, or maybe even lung trouble or other serious disease.

The alarming part of it is, we do not often realize the indican is there. But when your appetite gets poor, the breath foul, when you have dizzy headaches, bilious attacks, sour stomach, gas, there's a pretty sure sign you have Indican.

The best thing to do is to have a urinalysis made, and if the chemist reports Indican present, start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills for a few days, and see how all these signs start to disappear.

Carter's Little Liver Pills not only make the stomach, liver and bowels work in a fine healthy manner, but also have been found to drive the Indican out of the system.

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all of one group out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfil the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, and the success of chain system the remedy is recommended those who have used it satisfied, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says that for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never have failed to recommend, for in almost every case it proves excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has as large a sale.

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfils almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the acid which causes rheumatism.

KING OF MINSTRELS REIGNS AT KEITH'S

Eddie Leonard, the king of minstrels, delights all the world's favorites at Keith's Theatre this week in a minstrel skit called "Oh, Doin't it Rain." Eddie and the gang sing some new songs with old-time punch. The new dandies of Jack Russell, a Boston boy, is wildly applauded.

Bert Lahr and Mercedes put on one of the funniest burlesque skits seen in a long time in an act called "What's the Idea."

Another favorite is Enrico Rastelli, the "Master Juggler of the World." He astounds the audience with his cleverness. Miss Patricola, famous photograph model, sings the "Melancholy Melodist," with her cycle of character songs, is called back for many encores.

Thomas J. Ryan, one of the old-time song and dance men, with Hazel Harrington, appears in "Fond Recollections," bringing back memories of more than fifty years ago.

Les Pierrotys, the acrobatic comedians; Hewitt and Hall, "Song lands a favorite two each day," and the Mell Brothers in a sensational high perch act complete the bill.

COPLEY IN MILNE'S "THE ROMANTIC AGE"

"The Romantic Age," a light and agreeable comedy by A. A. Milne, was presented for the first time in Boston last night at the Copley Theatre.

The fanciful dreams of imaginative Malisande Knowle come true when her love in medieval armor appears to claim her for his own. She is soon disillusioned, however, when she discovers her knight is naught but a pseudo stock broker en route to a masquerade.

Messrs. Clive, Compton, Jones, Tonge and Misses Edins and Dudgeon played the leading roles.

THE PROPER LOCATION
Nothing, except the necessary funds, is of more importance than the selection of a "Proper Location" for a new home.

The choice of a proper location in building a home is of more importance because it is unchangeable. LOCATION IS THE CONTROLLING FACTOR in raising the entire property value of your home. A location that is badly zoned and for the convenience of business or even a poor location, will never be a desirable location for a home. Building restrictions will guarantee well for you.

Where Is the "Proper Location"?
The Commonwealth Avenue-Boston College District is the best location for single and two-family houses.

1—Accessible to business and transportation.
2—A southerly exposure, the land that absorbs the sun's rays.
3—Protected against industrial encroachment, by restrictions and neighbors permanently located, that will maintain a high class and clean cut district.
4—Practically on the Boston streetcar lines, but with a change of cars.
5—Lots containing from 5000 to 10,000 square feet.
6—Lots containing from 50 to 100 feet frontage.

"No Argument"

Simple Statement That Postoffice Clerks of the Maximum Grade Get Only $35 a Week Should Be a Substantial Increase

If there are three or four or more children in your house, and if your weekly income is fifty, seventy-five or one hundred dollars a week, you probably realize that the cost of living is at least as high as it was when we were hearing more talk about it.

How would you feel if the pay-envelope once every week contained but THIRTY-FIVE dollars?

"We couldn't BEGIN to get along on it," you say.

In that case you will appreciate the keen interest with which the members of thousands of American families will watch the fate of Senate bill 1898, providing for an increase of $300 per year in the salaries of Postoffice employes.

The present salary of the maximum grade of Postoffice clerks is $1,800, or a little LESS than thirty-five dollars a week.

In the last session of Congress the Kelly-Edge bill, Senate 1898, passed the House by a vote of 302 to 6 and the Senate by a vote of 73 to 3. It was vetoed by President Coolidge. Returning Senators find the vetoed bill before them as "unfinished business."

The arguments upon which Senators based their 73-3 vote of only a few weeks ago are as potent now as they were then. The cost of living certainly has NOT decreased.

It is a mighty poor brand of "economy" that drives efficient men out of the Postal service.

There are no more faithful public servants than the men and women of the Postoffice. NO public servants stand higher in the esteem of their fellow citizens.

The presumption, of course, is that members of Congress who voted so overwhelmingly for the increase did so in good faith.

Having done so, they should stand by their guns.

Don't Let Army Run Down

Air Service in Perilous State

The Secretary of War reports an American Army which, little by little, has been pared down to only 12,000 officers and 118,750 enlisted men.

He asks for 150,000 men and 13,000 officers, not to constitute an effective army, but to be the skeleton framework around which an effective army can be built if war comes.

This country is not willing to be prepared for land war or invasion. We must fight with citizen armies. Because of our wealth in war veterans with field experience, citizen armies can be improvised if we have equipment for them to use and enough trained officers to train and command them.

Training officers is the principal occupation of the regular army today. Last Summer, service in training camps was the business of four out of every five combat officers of the army and three out of every four enlisted men in the combat branches. Yet even so the army cannot meet the demand. Only 33,000 of the enrolled 47,000 candidates could be sent to Citizens' Military Training Camps. Scores of requests had to be refused for officers to serve as instructors in colleges and schools. The regular army has been cut so small that it can no longer even serve as an efficient educational institution.

Congress will note with care Secretary Weeks' description of the need for money to put the living quarters of soldiers in a state of decent repair and supply the Panama Canal with enough ammunition. He wisely asks for permission to promote for merit—not just seniority.

Above all, Congress will be shocked by the perilous state of the air service, the army's "eyes" and its most important combat arm. Four out of every five of our planes are obsolete, fit only for training fliers. The Secretary does not tell how many planes we have in all, but everyone in the service knows that army and navy together have fewer than the 600 aircraft which British air service has built in 1924.

Secretary Weeks asks for only 3,000 officers and 25,000 men in the air service, and 1,655 planes. That number of planes can be built for the $30,000,000 sent to the bottom last week when the Washington was sunk.

In these lawless days of a lawless world, to economize by letting the Army run down, is about as sensible as for a pioneer on the Indian frontier to economize by throwing away his gun.

Why Is Married Life Dull?

It Is Dull, Too Often. The Fault Is With the Man Usually

There are many people in the United States, unfortunately, rolling over in their minds the above question.

Needless to say, there are exceptions to the dullness of which the majority complain.

Radiant thousands of young married people are so happy that the mere suggestion of dullness will make them indignant. Many OLD couples, too, after years of married happiness, wonder that any married people find life dull and tiresome, calling for variety.

The conventional honeymoon undoubtedly is often a dismal, foolish institution.

The young couple set off by themselves, traveling in railroad trains, stopping at strange hotels, or, most idiotic of all, going on an ocean ship to become seasick.

The dullness of married life is chiefly due to MEN—just about NINETY-NINE PER CENT. of it is MAN'S fault.

In the first place, when men get tired—as they do with their day's work—they are selfish and dull. And they make the home atmosphere dull.

In the second place, men are SELFISH, they want to be amused, and the moment they find that married life lacks the excitement of courtship they are apt to get tired of it—or if not tired, at least indifferent and callous. They haven't got enough imagination to keep themselves busy with the study of the human being confided to them. They haven't got enough unselfishness to make real happiness for themselves in trying to make another person happy.

Women make one great mistake—it contributes to the dullness of married life and the failure of happiness. They are not SELFISH ENOUGH, they don't calculate enough. They ought to keep themselves to themselves more than they do. They ought to have control of the situation at the beginning of their married lives, and keep control until the end.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND

MY SON, dost thou consider a damsel's words seriously when she saith, "Ha, ha! THAT for marriage! For single life is a merry-go-round, but marriage is a game of solitaire; and if Fate is merciful, I shall never be so weak as to own ANY man!"

* * * *

Then, I charge thee, feed her with the TRUTH SERUM and question her concerning these things.

Helen Rowland

Inquire wherefore she carryeth a vanity case and powdereth her nose when no man looketh.

Wherefore she filleth a hope chest with frills and with fine linen, with tea-gowns and rose-colored negligee.

Wherefore she tinteth her lips as a cupid's bow and reddeneth her fingernails with henna, and fortifieth herself to pull out her eyebrows.

Wherefore she cultivateth a lisp and a baby stare, and studyeth to acquire a fascinating "line."

Wherefore she delighteth not in her loneliness, and findeth the dinner party an exceeding great bore if the men be all married, and there are no bachelors to charm and entice.

Wherefore she endureth the torments of a permanent wave.

Wherefore she feedeth upon gluten bread and pineapple and a lettuce leaf, and encaseth herself in garments of rubber.

Wherefore she "motherelh" the lone bachelor and boasteth of COOKING and showeth her kitchen cabinet with pride.

Wherefore, she asketh always concerning a man, "Is he MARRIED —or listening?"

Wherefore she spendeth her substance upon mud packs and masseurs and silver slippers and many hats rather than save it for the long and independent life of the single footer.

* * *

For, surely, surely, my son, she doeth not these things to please her MOTHER, neither to delight the heart of her BROTHER.

And NO business office reguleth that a damsel shall smell sweet in Paris perfumes, and array herself in patent leather pumps and French frocks and invisible hose.

Go to, my son! As a politician's election promises, so are a woman's declamations against marriage—valid only until the CAMPAIGN is won!

HELAN.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Phone Company Methods

Bitter Boston American:

From reading your publication, the Boston American, it appears to us that your paper is the only medium which is at all interested in the people's rights so far as the telephone company is concerned. Personally I am disinterested in the controversy, but have lived in Boston six months, having been here on business which is now completed, and leave immediately for Denver my home town. During my stay here I have watched with considerable interest the attitude of the Phone Company, as well as your department at the State House. For the money spent by the public I honestly believe that you receive less than in any place I have ever visited and there is no city in the U. S. of over 100,000 population I have not visited. I have not been in favor of public ownership, believing it kills all initiative from the individual point of view, but after spending my good money here for six months on phone calls I can now appreciate why some people are converted to that cause and justly so.

About six months ago, I understand, the company decided it needed more revenue and decided that all bills not paid on the 15th would be collected with about 50 per cent extra without any extra overhead. Briefly on the 15th of each month the company discontinues so many phones for unpaid bills, say 2,000 in Greater Boston, well scattered of course, and mostly the small subscriber whose bill averages 12.50 or 14.00 per month. The subscriber who never expresses himself. Upon payment of the bill service is immediately restored. Each month 1.00 is added to the bill for service connection charge.

I remember the fine old New England stock, but let me tell you, no company would ever get away with the things elsewhere while this octopus is pulling in the slot. Drop a nickel in the slot and if you lose write a letter and they will credit you with the 5c. A friend of mine who recently moved here from Cleveland was told he could not get a phone for seven months on account of new system being installed. I told him to be thankful that he was going to have a stay of sentence for seven months from being one more victim of this phone company.

Wants Old Trunk

Helping Hand Editor:

After being out of work for some time, my husband has secured a very good job in New Hampshire, and my main difficulty now is to get our few things together to get moved, as I have no means of buying much. If any of the readers have an old trunk or two or discarded bags or suitcases, would they please let me have them? There are five of us who can take baggage on our tickets, and I could pack quite a lot in that way and thus save express charges on boxes. We would like to go about January 1.

MRS. A. D.

Roxbury.

Family of Nine

Helping Hand Editor:

May I make an appeal to the Helping Hand for a family of nine children, whose father is out of work and mother in poor health for several weeks? Will some kind person send toys and underwear and clothing to these pitiful little things? The children are four boys, three, 4½, six and eight, and five girls, seven, nine, ten and twelve. Mother wears 42 size and the father is also in need of wearing apparel. I will make over anything sent to them. My heart aches for the children, coming on Christmas, and if someone doesn't help them it will be a pretty sad Christmas for them.

MRS. P.

Helping Hand Editor:

I have some dresses, size 44, and some other things that might be helpful to someone. They are not new, but whole.

MISS G. B. S.

Many thanks, Mrs. G. is in need of clothing the size you mention, and, as she lives in Boston also, we have asked her to call for the things as you requested.

Please Send Address

Helping Hand Editor:

Will Mrs. F. H., who asked for a puppy, kindly send street address?

Orphan Needs Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a girl of sixteen, without parents, and if you could secure help for me from some of the kind readers I would appreciate it very much. I just came out of a sanatorium and am unable to work. I need underwear size 36-38, dresses size 18, pair of oxfords size 5 and stockings size 10, or anything else I could use. I am staying with friends. Please help me, as it is cold and I am wearing Summer underclothes.

I have a coat that will fit a girl about eleven or twelve; also a pair of girls' high shoes, size 4. I will be glad to send them to anyone you suggest.

A. H.

Thank you. One of Mrs. C.'s four girls can make good use of the coat and shoes you mention. We are sending you her address.

All Need Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a poor woman with five children, two boys, thirteen and ten (big for their ages), and three girls, eleven, eight and six years of age. They all need clothing badly, from underwear up. My husband is not working steady, and all the money goes for rent and food, I also expect the stork in a few months, and I have no clothes for the newcomer. I would be so thankful to get anything.

MRS. C. B.

Girl Wants Desk

Helping Hand Editor:

I am fourteen years and would like a desk. My father is out of work and when he works makes very small pay. I will be very glad to get the desk from any good reader who has one to spare.

MAY S.

Five Girls in Family

Helping Hand Editor:

I know a certain family who are sadly in need of help. There are five girls in the family. Their ages are eleven, nine, six, three and one week old. Most anything would be acceptable. The mother takes a 3½ shoe and clothing size 34. The father is unable to support the family, as he hurt himself about a year ago and has not been able to do heavy work since. He takes about a 38 coat, 30 leg and size 7 shoe. Please do try and help them.

A. M.

For Mrs. H. E. H.

Helping Hand Editor:

If you know of any poor woman who could wear size 36-40, I would be pleased to send a few things.

MRS. C.

Many thanks. Mrs. H. E. H. is very much in need of clothing and will be pleased to get your bundle.

ADVANTAGE OF BEING A FOOL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THERE are some advantages in being a fool. In the first place the fool gets more attention than the wise man. He is flattered more, more attention is paid to his opinion and more effort is made to conciliate him, than if he is simply a normal human being.

If you crave attention, and all such things, the worst way to get them is to be known for your common sense and adaptability. Then no one will take any trouble with you. If they know where to find you, what's the use of looking after you?

The cry-baby always gets more attention than the good child, the balky horse more than the animal that simply does its stunt, the crooked stick than the straight one. So, if you are out for notoriety one of the simplest and easiest methods is being a fool.

To be sure, in your moments of reflections, if you have any, you will recognize that all this bother over you has been simply because people dislike you. It is an acknowledgment of your weakness, but that is better than having no bother made over you at all.

Why should sensible women, for instance, pay so much attention to their clothes and their hats when all they have to do is to dress in some bizarre fashion and act the fool and they will receive as much notice as if they had dressed most expensively.

We are amazed at the good nature which the murderer exhibits on the stand, but his overweaning desire to attract attention has been secured by his crime, attention which he would not otherwise have gained by a whole life of behaving himself.

In fact, observing the law of acting decently is, as a rule, a poor method of notoriety. Those who enjoy being pointed out in the community will find a much shorter and simpler method by simply acting like a fool.

In conclusion it may be said that it is only wise people who will pay attention to these remarks, whereas they will be unnoticed by the fools, who will not object to them.

CLEAR YOUR HOUSE OF THE WINTER FLY

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Subjects of Popular Interest.

RETURNING home after six months absence in Europe, in a last gleam of Indian Summer, I find the windows of my workroom crowded with flies seeking a refuge amidst the intricate crevices of the window-frames from the coming Winter, whose advance chill has already made them drowsy.

These flies were not home-born; by which I mean that owing to the precautions which I had taken in the Fall of 1923 and during the mild spells of the succeeding Winter, no breeding flies remained in the house when the Spring of 1924 opened, and up to the time when I went away, after the middle of May, not a fly had been seen on the premises.

But, the house being partially opened during the Summer, flies from the neighborhood (I live in a suburb of New York) of course entered, and they and their descendants were populating the sunny windows when I got home. This teaches that only by thorough "teamwork" can the fly nuisance and danger be overcome.

If only one or two of the inhabitants of a town take the trouble to kill off the flies remaining in their houses in the Fall and early Winter they will have their labor for their pains, because all the houses in which such precaution is not exercised are simply refuges and comfortable Winter quarters for the breeders of the next Spring generation of the fly scourge.

Most people appear to think that the half-stupefied flies that they see staggering about in sunny Autumn glooms are doomed to be frozen to death anyhow, so it is not worth while to kill them.

There could be no greater mistake. I take issue with those who affirm that all flies die off in the Winter time and that the new crop of the following year springs only from eggs laid in suitable places during the preceding Autumn.

I KNOW that multitudes of adult flies survive the Winter in a comatose condition, and that among their favorite hiding places from the cold are the numerous crevices and sheltered spaces opened to them by the structure of window-frames.

In any well warmed room, in a suburban house, that is abundantly furnished with windows, and exposed to the sunshine, flies may be found issuing at any time in the Winter when the temperature is unusually high.

If you want to keep your house free from flies don't allow them to hibernate in it. It may be that the destruction of one hibernating fly is more effective in decimating the detestible race than the killing of ten in the Summer time.

For your children's sake, strike! Medical science has branded the house-fly with the words "murderer," "typhoid pedlar," "infection spreader." You have only to watch its habits to know what it is.

Some persons (not bald) defend flies on sentimental grounds—they are such friendly creatures, so much at home, and so charmingly familiar!

Others argue that they are useful as scavengers. Would you think him a useful scavenger who scattered filth all about your premises and the neighborhood?

It takes brains to be a good scavenger; the fly has been shown by tests to be among the most stupid of all creatures. It is indiscriminating in its love of abominations, and it carries them wherever its wings take it, and leaves them wherever its feet walk.

No wonder the fly was chosen for one of the worst plagues sent upon Pharoh and his land.

Now that the garage has almost entirely displaced the horse stable, it should be much easier than formerly to exterminate flies.

But the house becomes proportionally more important as a breeding place and Winter refuge for the fly.

Most self-respecting suburban towns now have a "clean-up day" in the Autumn, when all refuse is burned up, or otherwise effectively disposed of.

Many apparently think that this is doing all that can be done to diminish the fly nuisance. But it is only a good beginning. Every householder, for his neighbor's sake as well as his own, should see to it that no flies "Winter over" with him.

ONCE-OVERS

ENJOY WHAT YOU HAVE AND YOU'LL NOT MAKE YOURSELF UNHAPPY WISHING FOR UNNECESSARY THINGS

Isn't it true that many of the things for which you wish and which you cannot possess are unnecessary things? And for these you make yourself unhappy.

Aren't you making yourself miserable instead of enjoying what you have?

Because you can't have what you want you won't enjoy anything. Your case is certainly extraordinary if you have no cause to rejoice. Everyone has certain things to be thankful for.

Wishing for things beyond your means robs your whole life of comfort.

There are others who have what you wish for most and they are not happy.

It may be unfortunate that you cannot earn enough money to possess what you think you want—to buy the comforts, pleasures and luxuries that you long for, but why worry about it?

The greatest blessing you can have is being contented and happy with what you possess. Then you can forget what you lack in peaceful recognition of the fact that many people have not as much as you.
